Women's Foundation Awards $152,700 in Grants

The San Diego Women's Foundation (SDWF) will award $152,700 to four new community partners at its 10th annual grants celebration from 5:30 to 8 p.m. on June 1 at the Neurosciences Institute in La Jolla. Grants will go to Camp Stevens for its Environmental Stewardship Program; Torrey Pines Docent Society for A Nature Connection for All Ages; San Diego Coastkeeper for its Marine Debris Program and Ocean Discovery Institute for its Canyon Community Connection Project. "Our focus this year, in the field of Environment, resulted in an extensive review of programs that involve people in activities connected to local nature that promote informed awareness of and personal responsibility for the natural environment of the San Diego Region" said Cindy Olmstead, SDWF president.
